

ABSTRACT

A container for flowers and other plant parts, for use in motor vehicles. The container includes a receptacle having a closed bottom, an open top, and sides that connect the bottom and top, and means to support flower stems and other plant parts that are inserted into the receptacle. The container can further include a ring such as a detachable grooved ring for holding aromatic substances and to prevent water from splashing out of the container.